To boost the speed of an Android smartphone, you need to remove unwanted apps, unwanted data, and cache files from your device. Acting manually can be cumbersome and inefficient. But there are specific ways to do that: 1. Remove App Caches To Clear Caches On Android: Settings > Storage > Cached Data > Clear Cache > OK 2. Delete Unwanted Apps To Uninstall Useless & Large Apps On Android: Settings > Apps > Locate The Desired App > Uninstall > OK (Repeat Steps Until All The Unwanted Android Apps Are Deleted) 3. Disable Animation Animations make your OS look appealing. However, it slows your Android down significantly. It's better to disable them to recover your device's speed & performance. Go to Settings > About Phone > Tap on Build Number at least seven times to enable Developer Options > Locate Windows Animation Scale > Tap Animation Off. (Repeat the last step for the Animator duration scale & Transition animation scale.) 4. Sort Out Duplicate Photos & Videos More than 50% of storage is occupied with duplicate images, videos, documents & other files. It's a necessity that you keep a close eye on your File Manager & regularly delete similar-looking pictures, screenshots, WhatsApp images, GIFs & videos. Though tackling these identical snaps & files can be an overwhelming experience, we recommend using Top Android Duplicate File Finders & Removers! Frequently Asked Questions: Q1.
